1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiff Haiqi CHEN (“Plaintiff”), through counsel, hereby files his opposition to 3 Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss (“Def. Mot. to Dism.”). In that motion, Defendants argue: first, 4 that the Federal Bureau of Investigation (“FBI”) is not a properly named defendant and should be 5 dismissed; second, that this Court lacks jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ claims under the 6 Administrative Procedures Act (“APA”) and the Mandamus Statute (28 U.S.C. § 1361); third, 7 that 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B) bars this Court’s jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ claims; and fourth, 8 that national security concerns counsel against this Court finding that it has jurisdiction over 9 Plaintiffs’ claims. However, just earlier this week, this Court denied a motion to dismiss in a 10 factually analogous case, finding that it has jurisdiction under both the APA and the Mandamus 11 Statute to hear the plaintiffs’ claims, and that 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B) does not bar its review.

12 See Soneji v. DHS, 2007 WL 3101660 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 22, 2007). As this Court found in Soneji, 13 and consistent with all other courts in this district to consider these issues (to Plaintiff’s 14 knowledge), Defendants’ arguments in their Motion to Dismiss the instant case are without merit.

15 First, contrary to Defendants’ argument, the FBI is a proper defendant to this action 16 because that agency has a mandatory duty to adjudicate any background or name check request 17 that the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (“USCIS”) makes in conjunction 18 with adjudicating an Application to Adjust Status (Form I-485) (“AOS application”). See Kaplan 19 v. Chertoff, 481 F. Supp. 2d 370, 400-01 (E.D. Pa. Apr. 16, 2007). Because the FBI has that 20 mandatory duty to act (and cannot simply choose to ignore name check requests), the APA 21 requires that the FBI conduct those name check requests within a reasonable period of time. Id.
 22 at 401.

24 Second, there is no merit to Defendants’ argument that Plaintiff’s action should be 25 dismissed for lack of jurisdiction under the APA and the Mandamus Statute. Contrary to 26 Defendants’ assertion, both the Immigration and Nationality Act and its implementing regulations

1 provide clear evidence that USICS has a mandatory duty to make a decision on Plaintiff's 2 properly-filed AOS application, and the APA requires that the agency complete its adjudication
3 of that application within a reasonable period of time. See, e.g., 8 U.S.C. § 1255(a); 8 C.F.R. § 4 245.2(a)(5). Defendants attempt to eviscerate this duty by arguing that because the substance of 5 their ultimate decision on an AOS application is discretionary, they do not have a duty to 6 adjudicate the application at all. However, this argument has already been rejected by this Court 7 as well as, to Plaintiff's best knowledge, all of the judges in this district (as well as many more 8 around the country), because it finds absolutely no statutory or regulatory support. See, e.g., 9 Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660, at *3; Quan v. Chertoff, 2007 WL 1655601, at *2-3 (N.D. Cal. Jun. 7, 10 2007), Dong v. Chertoff, -- F. Supp. 2d --, 2007 WL 2601107, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 6, 2007); Fu 11 v. Gonzales, 2007 WL 1742376, at *2 (N.D. Cal. May 22, 2007).

13 Third, there is no merit to Defendants' argument that this Court lacks jurisdiction over 14 Plaintiff's claims pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B). As this Court and numerous other courts 15 have found, that statutory provision only bars review over a decision or action that is specified 16 under the Immigration and Nationality Act to be in the discretion of the Attorney General or the 17 Secretary of Homeland Security. See 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B)(i). Given that the statute clearly 18 does not grant USCIS the specific discretion not to adjudicate an AOS application at all, 8 U.S.C.
19 § 1252(a)(2)(B) does not bar mandamus jurisdiction to determine whether the agency's delay is 20 unreasonable. See, e.g., Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660, at *2-3; Konchitsky v. Chertoff, 2007 WL
21 2070325, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Jul. 13, 2007); Dong, 2007 WL 2601107, at *3-4; Fu, 2007 WL 22 1742376, at *5; Toor v. Still, 2007 WL 2028407, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jul. 10, 2007).

25 Finally, Defendants' indication that national security concerns should preclude this Court 26 from asserting jurisdiction to determine the reasonableness of USCIS' delay in adjudicating 27 Plaintiff's AOS application is baseless. If there were truly a national security concern in 28

1 Plaintiff's case, it would seem more prudent for Defendants to expedite, rather than delay, 2 adjudication of his AOS application, as he has now been residing and working lawfully in the 3 United States for over four years while that application has remained pending. See, e.g., Dong, 4 2007 WL 2601107, at *10. There would also be no prejudice to Defendants if they grant 5 Plaintiff's AOS application and the FBI name check subsequently reveals that he was not 6 eligible, as the Immigration and Nationality Act provides them the mechanism by which to 7 rescind a grant of adjustment of status. See 8 U.S.C. § 1256(a).

 9 Thus, this Court should deny Defendants' Motion to Dismiss.

10 11 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

12 Plaintiff is a national of China and a citizen of Canada. See Declaration of Stacey 13 Gartland, filed with this Court on May 8, 2007 ("Gartland Decl.") at ¶ 2. He earned his Bachelor 14 of Science degree in Physics from the University of Science and Technology of China in Hefei, 15 China, his Masters of Science degree in Astrophysics from the Beijing Astronomical Observatory 16 in Beijing, China, and his Ph.D. in Astrophysics from the University of Western Ontario in 17 Ontario, Canada. Id. Plaintiff has worked as a senior level technology project leader for @Road, 18 Inc. in Fremont, California since January 2000. Id.

 20 On July 3, 2003, Plaintiff filed an employment-based Adjustment of Status application 21 with the USCIS California Service Center, based on a previously approved Immigrant Petition for 22 Alien Worker (Form I-140) filed by @Road, classifying him as a member of the professions with 23 an advanced degree. Id. at Exh. A. The I-140 Immigrant Petition was approved by the USCIS 24 California Service Center on June 16, 2003. Id.

 26 On November 2, 2004, Plaintiff, through counsel, contacted the USCIS California Service 27 Center via electronic mail to inquire about the status of his AOS application. Id. at Exh. B.
 28 Plaintiff did not receive a response to this first inquiry. Id. On November 17, 2004, Plaintiff,

1 through counsel, again contacted the USCIS California Service Center via electronic mail to 2 inquire about the status of his AOS application. Id. On December 15, 2004, he received a 3 response to this inquiry from Kathleen Bergey, California Service Center Adjudications Officer, 4 stating that his case was undergoing a detailed review. Id.

5 On June 14, 2005, with his application still not adjudicated almost two years after Plaintiff 6 had filed it, Plaintiff, through counsel, again contacted the USCIS California Service Center via 7 electronic mail as to inquire about the status of his application. Id. Plaintiff did not receive a 8 response to this inquiry. Id. On July 13, 2005, Plaintiff, through counsel, contacted the USCIS 9 California Service Center via electronic mail for a fourth time to inquire as to the status of his 10 AOS application. Id. Plaintiff again received no response to this inquiry. Id. On December 12, 11 2005, Plaintiff mailed a letter to United States Senator Barbara Boxer to ask for help in 12 determining the status of the “detailed review” of his AOS application, which Plaintiff’s lawyer 13 at that time had advised him was likely a reference to a pending FBI name check. Id. at Exh. C.
14

15 On February 10, 2006, Plaintiff called the USCIS National Customer Service Center to 16 inquire about the status of his AOS application for the fifth time. Id. at Exh. D. On March 1, 17 2006, Plaintiff, through counsel inquired for the sixth time about the status of his AOS 18 application, this time by contacting the USCIS via electronic mail. On March 7, 2006, he 19 received a letter from the USCIS California Service Center, stating that the processing of his case 20 had been delayed, and the required investigation into his background remained open. Id. On 21 September 25, 2006, Plaintiff, through counsel, contacted the USCIS California Service Center 22 for the seventh time, again via electronic mail, to inquire as to the status of his AOS application.
23 Id. at Exh. B. On September 26, 2006, T. Le of the USCIS California Service Center confirmed 24 by email that Plaintiff’s FBI “background security / name check” had yet to be cleared, and that 25 until it cleared, Plaintiff’s AOS application would not be adjudicated. Id.
26
27 28

1 On June 8, 2006, Plaintiff contacted United States Congressman Pete Stark to ask for 2 assistance in determining the status of his background security check. Id. at Exh. E. On August 3 16, 2006, Plaintiff received a reply letter from Congressman Stark, stating that according to the 4 FBI, Plaintiff's name check was still pending. Id.

5 On September 6, 2006, Plaintiff contacted United States Senator Diane Feinstein to ask 6 for help in expediting the completion of his background security check. Id. at Exh. F. On 7 December 8, 2006, Plaintiff received a response from Senator Feinstein's office, stating that it 8 had been informed by the FBI that Plaintiff's FBI name check had been pending since July 31, 9 2003, and was still pending. Id.

10 On July 30, 2007, USCIS issued a Request for Evidence to Plaintiff, requesting that 11 Plaintiff submit an updated employer verification letter (presumably because his AOS application 12 had been pending for such a long time), as well as evidence of his employment authorization 13 from September 30, 2003 to the present. See Declaration of Beth Feinberg ("Feinberg Dec") at 14 Exh. A. Plaintiff promptly responded to the Request for Evidence and submitted all requested 15 documentation to USCIS on August 15, 2007.¹ Id. at B*.

16 The USCIS website shows that as of October 15, 2007, the agency is currently processing 17 employment-based adjustment of status applications that it received on or before December 19, 18 2006. Id. at Exh. C. This shows that Plaintiff's application is now nearly three and a half years 19 behind normal processing time. Id. Plaintiff has exhausted all available administrative remedies.
 20
 22
 23
 24

25 ¹ In their Motion to Dismiss, Defendants state that "a request for missing evidence" was 26 issued to Plaintiff in July 2007, apparently trying to characterize that request as USCIS' attempt 27 to remedy an incomplete application. See Def. Mot. to Dism. at 4 (emphasis added). In fact, 28 however, this Request for Evidence was for updated documentation of Plaintiff's continued employment due to the fact that Defendants were only getting around to even looking at the application, it appears, four years after the application was filed.

III. ARGUMENT

A. THE FBI IS A PROPERLY NAMED DEFENDANT AND SHOULD NOT BE DISMISSED BY THIS COURT

Defendants first argue that this Court should dismiss the FBI as a defendant from this action. See Def. Mot. to Dism. at 5. However, this argument is without merit because the FBI has a mandatory duty to act on a name check that USCIS has ordered in conjunction with adjudicating AOS applications, and the APA requires that the FBI complete that name check within a reasonable period of time, as courts both within this district and around the country have found. See, e.g., Kaplan v. Chertoff, 481 F.Supp.2d 370, 400-01 (E.D. Pa. 2007) (FBI has a mandatory duty to conduct name checks for AOS applications within a reasonable time period); Soneji v. DHS, 2007 WL 3101660, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 22, 2007) (not dismissing the FBI as a defendant and concluding that the defendants have a “non-discretionary duty to adjudicate Plaintiffs’ Application within a reasonable time.”); Quan v. Chertoff, 2007 WL 1655601, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Jun. 7, 2007) (same); Fu v. Gonzales, 2007 WL 1742376 at * 6 (N.D. Cal. May 22, 2007) (same). See also Toor v. Still, 2007 WL 2028407 at *3 n. 14 (N.D. Cal. Jul. 10, 2007) (in adjudicating the defendants’ motion to dismiss, this Court found that whether the FBI was a proper defendant “need not presently be reached.”).

In Kaplan, 481 F. Supp. 2d at 400-01, the court found that the plaintiffs stated a claim against the FBI under the APA because the FBI has a mandatory duty to complete, within a reasonable period of time, the name checks ordered by USCIS in connection with their adjudication of AOS applications. Id. In reaching this conclusion, the court considered legislative intent and found that “it appears clear from a number of Congressional enactments that Congress has imposed a mandatory duty on the FBI to perform background checks in these particular circumstances.” Id. at 400. The court

1 specifically noted that Congress expressed this intent by establishing that aliens must 2 submit AOS application fees to USCIS, and a portion of those fees must be paid to the 3 FBI for fingerprint and name checks for the applicant. Id. at 401. The provision of fees 4 to the FBI for those services indicates legislative intent that the FBI has a mandatory 5 duty to actually perform those paid-for services, and the APA requires that the FBI 6 complete its mandatory services within a reasonable period of time. Id. Thus, the court 7 held, as this Court should similarly hold, that the plaintiffs' APA claim against the FBI 8 should not be dismissed. Id.

11 B. DEFENDANTS' ARGUMENT THAT THIS COURT LACKS JURISDICTION 12 OVER PLAINTIFF'S CLAIMS UNDER THE APA AND THE MANDAMUS 13 STATUTE IS WITHOUT MERIT

14 Defendants raise the same argument in the instant case that this Court has only just 15 recently rejected in Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660, namely that the APA and the Mandamus Statute 16 do not give this Court jurisdiction over Plaintiff's claims.² However, as discussed below, that 17 argument is entirely without merit, as this Court, all other courts in this district (to Plaintiff's 18 knowledge), and numerous other courts around the country have found.

19 The Mandamus Act provides that, "[t]he district courts shall have original jurisdiction of 20 any action in the nature of mandamus to compel an officer or employee of the United States or 21 any agency thereof to perform a duty owed to the plaintiff." 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Mandamus is a 22 remedy available to compel a federal official to perform a duty if: (1) the individual's claim is 23 clear and certain; (2) the official's duty is nondiscretionary, ministerial, and so plainly prescribed 24 as to be free from doubt, and (3) no other adequate remedy is available. Patel v. Reno, 134 F.3d 25 929, 931 (9th Cir. 1997); Azurin v. Von Raab, 803 F.2d 993, 995 (9th Cir.1986). Plaintiff meets 28 ² This Court also reached that same holding in Quan v. Chertoff, 2007 WL 1655601 (N.D. Cal. Jun. 7, 2007).

1 the above test as his claim is clear and certain, Defendants have a duty to adjudicate his AOS 2 application, and no other adequate remedy is available. See Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 at * 5.

3 In addition, the APA provides that "[w]ith due regard for the convenience and necessity of 4 the parties or their representatives and within a reasonable time, each agency shall proceed to 5 conclude a matter presented to it" 5 U.S.C. § 555(b) (emphasis added). The APA further 6 provides that the federal courts "shall ... compel agency action unlawfully withheld or 7 unreasonably delayed" 5 U.S.C. § 706(1) (emphasis added). As the Tenth Circuit pointed out, 8 the APA prohibits both agency action unlawfully withheld and agency action unreasonably 9 delayed, thereby giving rise to a legally enforceable right to the completion of administrative 10 agency action within a reasonable time, not merely a right to have the agency take some action at 11 all. See Forest Guardians v. Babbitt, 164 F.3d 1261, 1269 (10th Cir.1998); Deering Milliken, 12 Inc. v. Johnston, 295 F.2d 856, 861 (4th Cir.1961). Although the Immigration and Nationality Act 13 provides no discrete time period in which the agency must act, courts have concluded that the 14 APA imposes a "reasonable time" constraint in such cases. See, e.g., Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 15 at *5 ("[T]he Court finds that Defendants have a nondiscretionary duty to adjudicate Plaintiffs' 16 Applications and this duty must be undertaken within a reasonable amount of time."); Baker v.
 17 Still, 2007 WL 1393750 at *2 (N.D. Cal. May 9, 2007) ("Allowing Defendants a limitless amount 18 of time to adjudicate Plaintiff's application "would be contrary to the reasonable time frame 19 mandated under 5 U.S.C. [§] 555(b) and, ultimately, could negate the [USCIS'] duty under 8 20 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(5)."); Dmitriev v. Chertoff, 2007 WL 1319533, at *3 (N.D. Cal. May 4, 2007); 21 Aboushaban v. Mueller, 2006 WL 3041086 at *2 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 24, 2006); Salehian v. Novak, 22 2006 WL 3041109, at *2 (D. Conn. Oct. 23, 2006); Agbemape v. INS, 1998 WL 292441, at *2
 23 (E.D. Ill. May 18, 1998) ("Congress could not have intended to authorize potentially interminable 24 delays. We hold that as a matter of law, [plaintiff] is entitled to a decision within a reasonable time [on, inter alia, his AOS application], and that it is within the power of the court to order such an adjudication.”); Yu v. Brown, 36 F.Supp.2d 922, 928-32 (D.N.M.1999) (applying the APA’s reasonable requirement to similar regulatory provisions); Kim v. Ashcroft, 340 F. Supp. 2d 384, 391-92 (S.D.N.Y.2004) (same); see also Tang v. Chertoff, 493 F. Supp. 2d 148, 156 (D. Mass. Jun. 26, 2007) (“[T]o defer to agencies on pace of adjudication would be effectively to lift the duty to adjudicate applications altogether.”). Thus, because Defendants have a duty to adjudicate Plaintiff’s AOS application within a reasonable time, this Court has jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s claims under the APA and the Mandamus Statute.

10 11 1. Pursuant to the Immigration and Nationality Act and its Implementing 12 Regulations, Defendants Have a Ministerial, Non-Discretionary Duty to 13 Adjudicate Plaintiff’s AOS Application

14 This Court, as well as numerous judges in the Northern District of California and 15 elsewhere, has held that Defendants have a ministerial, non-discretionary duty to 16 adjudicate properly-filed AOS applications. See, e.g., Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 ; Quan, 17 2007 WL 1655601; Dong v. Chertoff, -- F. Supp. 2d --, 2007 WL 2601107 (N.D. Cal.
 18 Sept. 6, 2007); Okuney v. Chertoff, 2007 WL 2023553 (N.D. Cal. Jul. 11, 2007); Toor, 19 2007 WL 2028407; Fu, 2007 WL 1742376 (N.D. Cal. May 22, 2007); Gelfer v. Chertoff, 20 2007 WL 902382 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 22, 2007); Singh v. Still, 470 F.Supp.2d 1064 (N.D.
 21 Cal. Jan. 8, 2007); Aboushaban, 2006 WL 3041086. In each of these cases, this Court 22 and other courts in this district have rejected the exact same argument that Defendants 23 again make here – that this Court lacks jurisdiction to review Plaintiff’s claims on the 24 ground that the adjudication of AOS applications is a matter committed to USCIS’ 25 discretion. See Def. Mot. to Dism. at 6. However, even though the agency’s ultimate 26 decision as to whether to grant or deny AOS is a discretionary matter, it is clear that both 27 the statutory and regulatory texts create a ministerial non-discretionary duty to adjudicate

1 Plaintiff's AOS application one way or another, and to do so within a reasonable time.
2 See Fu, 2007 WL 1742376 at *2 ("[C]ourts have jurisdiction at a minimum under the 3 APA because Defendants have a non-discretionary duty to process the AOS applications 4 within a reasonable time, as distinct from its discretionary authority of whether to grant 5 or deny the application; Gelfer, 2007 WL 902382, at *2 (N.D. Cal. March 22, 2007); 6 Singh, 470 F.Supp.2d 1064, 1067 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 8, 2007) ("[T]here is a difference
7 between the [USCIS'] discretion over how to resolve an application and the [USCIS']
8 discretion over whether it resolves an application.") (emphasis in original). As this Court 9 stated, "[t]he Court agrees that while the relevant statutes and regulations give the agency 10 the discretion to choose how to decide an application, they nevertheless impose on it a 11 nondiscretionary duty to make such a decision. Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660, at *3 12 (emphasis in original). In fact, Defendants themselves agree that "USCIS must 13 eventually notify an applicant of its decision on a I-485 application" – thereby effectively 14 conceding that the agency does have a duty to adjudicate an AOS application at some 15 point. See Def. Mot. to Dism. at 7. And, if there is a duty to adjudicate at some point, 16 then the adjudication must take place within a reasonable time. See 5 U.S.C. § 555(b); 17 see also Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 at *4; Quan, 2007 WL 1655601 (N.D. Cal. Jun. 7, 18 2007).

20 The Immigration and Nationality Act provides that an individual may apply for 21 permanent residency if 1) he has been inspected and admitted or paroled into the United 22 States; 2) he is eligible to receive an immigrant visa and is admissible to the United States 23 for permanent residence; and 3) an immigrant visa is immediately available to him at the 24 time his application is filed. 8 U.S.C. § 1255(a). The implementing regulations provide 25 that:
26
27

1 The applicant shall be notified of the decision of the director and, if the 2 application is denied, the reasons for the denial... If the application is 3 approved, the applicant's permanent residence shall be recorded as of the date of the order approving the adjustment of status.

4 8 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(5) (emphasis added). See also 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(19) ("An 5 applicant or petitioner shall be sent a written decision on his or her application, petition, 6 motion, or appeal.") (emphasis added).

7 The Supreme Court has established that the use of the term "shall" constitutes a 8 mandatory duty upon the subject of the command. As the Tenth Circuit has explained: 9 "‘Shall’ means shall. The Supreme Court and this circuit have made clear that when a 10 statute uses the word ‘shall,’ Congress has imposed a mandatory duty upon the subject of 11 the command." Forest Guardians, 164 F.3d at 1268, citing United States v. Monsanto, 12 491 U.S. 600, 607 (1989) (by using "shall" in civil forfeiture statute, "Congress could not 13 have chosen stronger words to express its intent that forfeiture be mandatory in cases 14 where the statute applied"); Pierce v. Underwood, 487 U.S. 552, 569-70 (1988) 15 (Congress' use of "shall" in a housing subsidy statute constitutes "mandatory language").
 16 See also Patel v. Reno, 134 F.3d 929, 933 (9th Cir. 1997) (agency has a duty to act on 17 pending visa petition based on the requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act 18 and its implementing regulations); Aboushaban, 2006 WL 3041086, at *1-2 (agency has 19 a duty to adjudicate application for adjustment of status); Yu, 36 F. Supp. 2d at 931-32 20 (holding that the INS owed plaintiff a duty to process her application for a change of her 21 status to permanent resident)

22 Defendants' duty to adjudicate AOS applications is also apparent in Congress' 23 imposition of a mandatory fee specifically to cover the cost of adjudicating those 24 applications, see 8 U.S.C. § 1356(m), which USCIS only recently raised from $ 305.00 to 25 $ 905.00. See 72 Fed. Reg. 29851 (May 30, 2007). See also 8 C.F.R. §§ 103.2(a)(1), 1 (a)(7) (providing for non-refundable AOS adjudication fee).³ In addition, Defendants' 2 duty to adjudicate properly-filed AOS applications may also be found in the statutory and 3 regulatory provisions regarding how the agency's decisions must be issued. For example, 4 8 U.S.C. § 1255(b) requires USCIS to record when an alien has been lawfully admitted 5 for permanent residence "upon approval" of an AOS application, implicitly requiring that 6 those applications be adjudicated (to determine which ones should be recorded as 7 approved).

9 Likewise, the regulations also implicitly require that USCIS adjudicate all AOS 10 applications by providing mandatory procedures for notifying the applicant of the 11 agency's decision and recording that decision. See, e.g., 8 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(5)(i) ("The 12 applicant shall be notified of the decision of the director and, if the application is denied, 13 the reasons for the denial."); 8 C.F.R. § 245(a)(5)(ii) ("If the application is approved, the 14 applicant's permanent residence shall be recorded as of the date of the order approving 15 the adjustment of status."). See also Fu, 2007 WL 1742376 at *3 (recognizing that 16 USCIS has a duty under 8 C.F.R. 245.2(a)(5) to notify the applicant of the decision and to 17 record the applicant's permanent residence if the AOS application is approved). Other 18 regulations imply Defendants' duty to adjudicate AOS applications by mandating how 19 certain applications must be decided. See, e.g., 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(12) ("An application 20 or petition shall be denied where any application or petition upon which it was based was 21 filed subsequently."); 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(14)⁴ (where an AOS applicant fails to submit

25 ³ In asserting that they do not have a duty to adjudicate AOS applications, Defendants are 26 essentially arguing that aliens must pay $ 905.00 to USCIS for the possibility that their AOS 27 applications might be adjudicated. That argument is untenable.

28 ⁴ This regulatory provision also mandates how an AOS application must be decided where an applicant requests a decision before all required evidence is submitted. See 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(14). In light of USCIS' duty to adjudicate incomplete applications in a certain manner,

1 all requested additional evidence or fails to appear for a required fingerprinting or 2 interview, that “shall result in the denial of the related application or petition.”); see also 3 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(8)(i) (where approval or denial is mandated vis a vis an AOS 4 applicant’s response to a request for evidence). Still other regulations mandate the steps 5 Defendants must take to adjudicate AOS applications. See, e.g., 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(6); 6 103.2(b)(8)(ii)-(iv); 103.3(a)(1); 103.2(b)(16); 245.2(a)(5). Clearly, given that 7 Defendants have numerous statutory and regulatory duties regarding how they adjudicate 8 AOS applications, it must be inferred that they have a clearly established duty to 9 adjudicate those applications in the first place.⁵ See Toor, 2007 WL 2028407 at *2 (“8 10 U.S.C. § 1255(a) grants the Attorney General discretion over whether to grant or deny an 11 application for adjustment, not whether to adjudicate the application. Code regulations 12 clearly contemplate that a decision will be made on each I-485 application and that the 13 applicant will be informed thereof.”), citing 8 C.F.R. § 245.2(a)(5)(i).

16 2. The APA Requires That Defendants Must Adjudicate AOS Applications 17 Within a Reasonable Period of Time

18 Section 555(b) of the APA explicitly requires that that an agency must perform a 19 mandatory action within a reasonable period of time, regardless of whether the 20 underlying statute or regulations impose specific time frames.⁶ See Fu, 2007 WL

22 USCIS must clearly have a duty to adjudicate complete applications as well.

23 ⁵ Defendants’ citation to regulatory provisions that reference USCIS’ discretion in how it 24 adjudicates AOS applications fails to rebut Plaintiff’s argument that USCIS has a clear to 25 adjudicate those applications. See Def. Mot. to Dism. at 6, citing 8 U.S.C. § 1255(a); 8 C.F.R. §§ 26 103.2(b)(7), 103.2(b)(18), 245.6. In fact, these regulations provide for exceptions to the standard 27 adjudication process, only further refuting Defendants’ argument that they have no duty to 28 adjudicate at all.

6 ⁶ In addition, although not a mandatory deadline, 8 U.S.C. § 1571(b) provides that: “It is the sense of Congress that the processing of an immigration benefit application should be completed not later than 180 days after the initial filing of the application.” This indicates that

1 1742376 at *3 (“[T] o allow the USCIS a limitless amount of time to adjudicate 2 petitioner’s application would be contrary to the ‘reasonable time’ frame mandated under 3 5 U.S.C. § 555(b)....”); see also TRAC v. FCC, 750 F.2d 70 (D.C. Cir. 1984) (providing 4 a non-exhaustive list of multiple factors to consider when determining the reasonableness 5 of agency delay, most of which did not contemplate a Congressional time table for 6 agency action); Forest Guardians, 174 F.3d at 1190 (“In the absence of any clear statutory 7 guidance..., if an agency has no concrete deadline establishing a date by which it must 8 act, and instead is governed only by general timing provisions-such as the APA's general 9 admonition that agencies conclude matters presented to them “within a reasonable time,” 10 see 5 U.S.C. § 555(b) – a court must compel... action that is delayed unreasonably.”).
 11 When reviewing agency action, the APA clearly provides that courts should first consider 12 all evidence and make a determination as whether the agency’s delay in adjudicating an 13 AOS application is reasonable (5 U.S.C. § 555(b)); and second, if the court determines 14 that the agency’s action is “unreasonably delayed,” then compel the agency to act, i.e. to 15 make a decision one way or another (5 U.S.C. § 706(1)).⁷

16 This Court has already flatly rejected Defendants’ argument that this Court lacks a 17 “meaningful standard” against which to review the agency’s discretion because there are no 18

19 Congress did, in fact, intend for the agency to adjudicate AOS applications within a reasonable 20 period of time.

21 ⁷ Defendants’ mischaracterize the Supreme Court’s decision in Norton v. Southern Utah 22 Wilderness Alliance, 542 U.S. 55 (2004), by stating that the Court held that courts have 23 jurisdiction under APA § 706(a) only where the agency’s time period to act is proscribed by law.
 24 Def. Mot. to Dism. at 5-6. That is not correct. Rather, the Court held that “the only agency 25 action that can be compelled under the APA is action legally required.” Norton, 542 U.S. at 63-26 64. In Soneji, this Court rejected Defendants’ argument that, under the reasoning in Norton, 27 USCIS is not required to adjudicate AOS applications. 2007 WL 3101660, at *3. In fact, this 28 Court stated that “[s]uch an interpretation not only pushes the bounds of common sense but is also contradicted by a wealth of authority from this and other districts.” Id.. Likewise, in the instant case, as discussed above, Defendants are legally required to adjudicate Plaintiff’s AOS application.

1 Congressionally-established mandatory time frames for adjudication of AOS applications. See 2 Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 at *4; see also § III.D, infra; Def. Mot. to Dism. at 6-7, quoting 3 Heckler v. Chaney, 470 U.S. 821, 830 (1985).⁸ This Court has further rejected Defendants' 4 argument that this Court would be forced to "create a temporal standard from thin air," which 5 would be a "perilous task given the national security considerations" for Courts to determine the 6 reasonableness of an adjudication delay. See Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 at *4; see also Def.
 7 Mot. to Dism. at 6-7 As this Court held in Soneji, consistent with numerous other courts to 8 consider this issue, there would be no need to "create a temporal standard from thin air" because 9 the APA's reasonableness standard provides the requisite "meaningful standard" under which 10 this Court reviews the agency's delay in adjudication See 2007 WL 3101660 at *4; citing, inter 11 alia, Razaq v. Poulos, 2007 WL 61884, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 8, 2007) (holding that the APA 12 reasonableness standard applies "when Congress imposes a duty but does not articulate a 13 specific time frame within which that duty must be honored."); Aboushaban, 2006 WL 14 3041086, at *2 ("[T]he government has a duty to adjudicate plaintiff's application within a 15 reasonable time."); Yu, 36 F. Supp. at 931-32 ("Defendants fail to comprehend that the APA 16
 18

19 ⁸ In Heckler, 470 U.S. at 821-22, the Supreme Court held that courts do not have 20 jurisdiction under the APA to review the Food and Drug Administration's ("FDA") decision not 21 take certain enforcement actions because the substance of that decision is committed to agency 22 discretion. Id. at 821-22. The Court further held that courts can only review agency action if 23 there is a "meaningful standard against which to judge the agency's exercise of discretion." Id. at 24 830. As discussed in this section, contrary to Defendants' argument, the APA's reasonableness 25 standard provides the requisite "meaningful standard" in order to review the agency's delay in 26 adjudication. See Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 at *4. Moreover, in Heckler, the Court explicitly 27 stated that "[t]he general exception to reviewability provided by § 701(a)(2) remains a narrow 28 one, ...but within that exception are included agency refusals to institute investigative or enforcement proceedings, unless Congress has indicated otherwise." Id. at 838. Here, Plaintiff is not challenging the substance of any decision (such as an agency refusal, as in Heckler), but rather is seeking for this Court to compel Defendants only to adjudicate his AOS application in the first place. Applying the Supreme Court's decision in Heckler to the instant case, even if the decision as to whether to grant or deny an AOS application is committed to agency discretion, the decision as to whether to adjudicate that application at all is not. See Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660, at * 3-4.

1 itself imposes on them the duty to complete Plaintiff's application within a reasonable time.");
 2 Iddir, 301 F.3d at 500; Razik v. Perryman, 2003 WL 21878726, at *2 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 7, 2003);
 3 Agbemapple, 1998 WL 292441, at *2 ("as a matter of law, [Plaintiff is entitled to a decision 4 within a reasonable time."). As the court explained in Tang:

5 It is not necessary in this case to locate the exact position of the 6 boundary between reasonable and unreasonable time for adjudication of 7 permanent residency applications. Wherever that line may fall, this case 8 is far to the "unreasonable" side. It has taken over four years and counting for the government simply to acknowledge what is already 9 known to them, to plaintiffs, and to the Court: that there are no FBI records pertaining to Tang.

10 Tang, 493 F. Supp. 2d at 157-58 (emphasis added).

11 This Court should thus find that because Defendants have a ministerial, non-12 discretionary duty to adjudicate Plaintiff's AOS application, this Court has jurisdiction to 13 determine, on the merits, whether Defendants' delay – which is now over four year and 14 counting – in adjudicating Plaintiff's AOS application is reasonable.

16 Finally, Defendants' argument that this Court should not grant Plaintiff's writ of 17 mandamus as that would allow AOS applicants who seek mandamus relief to unfairly "cut in 18 line" ahead of those who do not pursue relief in District Court was recently squarely rejected 19 by Hon. Saundra Brown Armstrong in Dong v. Chertoff, -- F. Supp. 2d --, 2007 SL 2601107, 20 at *11 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 6, 2007) ("The Court does not find this argument compelling."). In 21 Dong, Judge Armstrong reasoned that the plaintiffs, whose AOS applications had been pending 22 for approximately two years, had more than "waited their turn" and required mandamus relief 23 in order to be "placed back in the queue" so that their AOS applications might finally be 24 adjudicated. Id. at *12. Judge Armstrong likewise rejected the defendants' argument (that 25 Defendants also raise in the instant case), that granting mandamus to the plaintiffs in Dong 26 might open the floodgates to immigration-related mandamus litigation. As Judge Armstrong 27
 28

1 stated, "the fact that other individuals similarly deprived of their rights to have their 2 applications processed according to the law may seek redress is hardly a reason to withhold 3 relief that is legally warranted. ... The ancillary concerns raised by the defendants therefore do 4 not obviate the plaintiffs' right to have their applications for adjustment of status processed."

7 3. In Addition to Defendants' Duty to Adjudicate AOS Applications Within a 8 Reasonable Time Under the APA, 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(18) Establishes Mandatory Guidelines Regarding the Timeframe and Manner for Withholding Adjudication of AOS Applications

10 Moreover, as Judge Armstrong recently held in denying a similar motion to 11 dismiss, in addition to the APA's reasonableness standard, 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(18) 12 "imposes a non-discretionary duty upon the defendants with a specific framework for 13 both the timing and manner of withholding adjudication of adjustment of residency 14 status." Dong, 2007 WL 2601107, at * 6. The regulation provides:

15 A district director may authorize withholding adjudication of a visa 16 petition or other application if the district director determines that an 17 investigation has been undertaken involving a matter relating to 18 eligibility or the exercise of discretion, where applicable, in connection 19 with the application or petition, and that the disclosure of information to 20 the applicant or petitioner in connection with the adjudication of the 21 application or petition would prejudice the ongoing investigation. If an 22 investigation has been undertaken and has not been completed within one 23 year of its inception, the district director shall review the matter and 24 determine whether adjudication of the petition or application should be 25 held in abeyance for six months or until the investigation is completed, 26 whichever comes sooner. If, after six months of the district director's 27 determination, the investigation has not been completed, the matter shall 28 be reviewed again by the district director and, if he/she concludes that more time is needed to complete the investigation, adjudication may be held in abeyance for up to another six months. If the investigation is not completed at the end of that time, the matter shall be referred to the regional commissioner, who may authorize that adjudication be held in abeyance for another six months. Thereafter, if the Associate Commissioner, Examinations, with the concurrence of the Associate Commissioner, Enforcement, determines it is necessary to continue to withhold adjudication pending completion of the investigation, he/she shall review that determination every six months.

8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(18). This regulation clearly mandates action on the part of the agency and, alternatively, requires that the agency take several affirmative steps if action is to be withheld, none of which Defendants assert are present in the instant case.⁹ See Dong, 2007 WL 2601107, at *7. As this Court concluded in Dong, “[t]he procedural requirements specified in this regulation ensure that some timely decision is made or action taken on these applications.... If the USCIS has failed to comply with 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(18), then this Court has subject matter jurisdiction under either the APA, the mandamus statute, or both, to compel an agency action unlawfully withheld.” Id. Thus, in addition to the reasonableness standard under the APA, 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(18) provides a regulatory mandate for a timeline within which USCIS must adjudicate Plaintiffs’ AOS application.

Thus, pursuant to the APA and the mandamus statute, this Court clearly has jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s claims.

C. 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B) DOES NOT BAR THIS COURT’S JURISDICTION OVER PLAINTIFF’S CLAIMS

Contrary to Defendants’ argument, 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B) does not bar this Court from jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s claims because, under the plain terms of the statute, courts lack review only over a “decision or action of the Attorney General or the Secretary of Homeland Security” where that decision or action “is specified under this subchapter to be in the discretion ⁹ Because Defendants have not asserted that the agency has delayed adjudication pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(18), this regulation only evidences that Defendants have a regulatory duty to act, and fails to provide any justification for the agency’s delay in adjudicating Plaintiff’s AOS application. See, e.g., Toor, 2007 WL 2028407, at *2 (N.D. Cal. 2007) (“Since defendants provide no evidence to suggest that plaintiff’s application is being withheld pursuant to section 103.2(b)(18), its provisions are inapplicable.”); Elmalky v. Upchurch, 2007 WL 944330, at *4 (N.D. Tex. Mar. 28, 2007) (same); Patel v. INS, 2000 WL 298921, at *2 n.3 (E.D. Mo. Jan. 20, 2000) (same).

1 of the Attorney General or the Secretary of Homeland Security.” 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B)(ii).
 2 Here, Plaintiffs seek mandamus relief not because of any “decision or action” of Defendants, but 3 rather because of their complete failure to act at all, which it is not within their discretion to do.
 4 Defendants’ failure to adjudicate an application is clearly not “specified” under 8 U.S.C. § 1255
 5 (the statutory provision governing adjustment of status applications) and, therefore, this Court 6 has jurisdiction to determine whether the agency’s delay in acting was reasonable under the 7 APA. See, e.g., Fu, 2007 WL 1742376 at *5 (finding that the government lacks the discretion to 8 simply not adjudicate an AOS application at all because “the discretion giving rise to the 9 jurisdictional bar must be ‘specified’ by statute”).

10 This Court and other courts in this judicial district have held that they have jurisdiction to 11 consider mandamus actions in cases where, as here, the government has failed to adjudicate an 12 AOS application within a reasonable amount of time. See, e.g., Soneji, 2007 WL 3101660 at *2-13 3. In Dong, 2007 WL 2601107 at *3-4, for example, Judge Armstrong denied the defendants’ 14 motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, flatly rejecting their argument that 8 U.S.C. § 15 1252(a)(2)(B) bars judicial review over a mandamus action brought by an alien seeking to have 16 his AOS application adjudicated. In that case, the alien had filed an AOS application with 17 USCIS, which remained pending for nearly two years because the FBI name check had not yet 18 been completed. Id. at *1. As in the instant case, in Dong, the defendants filed a motion to 19 dismiss arguing, inter alia, that this Court lacked jurisdiction to review the alien’s claims under 20 the APA and the mandamus statute, pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B), because the 21 defendants’ duty to adjudicate the AOS application was discretionary. Id. at *3. The Court 22 rejected that argument and found that 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(2)(B) did not bar its jurisdiction, 23 reasoning that:

24 This issue has come before the Northern District of California at least nine 25 previous times in recent months (ten if an analogous examination of an I-130

1 application is counted), and in each instance, the position advanced by the 2 government has been rejected and an obligation to process such applications in a reasonable period of time has been found.

2 D. DEFENDANTS' ALLUSION TO NATIONAL SECURITY CONCERNS TO 3 JUSTIFY THEIR UNREASONABLE DELAY IN ADJUDICATING 4 PLAINTIFF'S AOS APPLICATION IS A RED HERRING

5 Finally, Defendants indicate that "national security considerations" counsel finding that 6 this Court lacks jurisdiction to review USCIS' delay in adjudicating AOS applications under the 7 APA and the Mandamus Statute. See Def. Mot. to Dism. at 7. However, in raising security in 8 this context, Defendants are merely putting forward a red herring to shield their unreasonable 9 delays from any judicial scrutiny. There is no merit to their argument that this Court's review 10 of adjudication delay might adversely impact the national security.

11 First, this argument is baseless because, if anything, the national security is put at risk by 12 delaying the adjudication of name checks that are allegedly designed identify persons who pose 13 a security threat. In a declaration attached to Defendants' Motion to Dismiss, the Director of 14 the USCIS Nebraska Service Center, F Gerard Heinauer, asserts that "the public safety requires 15 USCIS to make certain that the checks have been done before it adjudicates any application or 16 petition and before it issues any immigration status documents to such persons." See Def. Mot.
17 to Dism., Declaration of F Gerard Heinauer at 7. Mr. Heinauer makes reference to "the terrorist 18 attacks of September 11, 2001" and the resulting "need to conduct more rigorous and thorough 19 background checks on aliens who are seeking immigration status in the United States." In fact, 20 however, if there was an actual national security concern in Plaintiff's case, it would seem more 21 logical for Defendants to expedite his name check, rather than simply evoking security concerns 22 generally in order to justify the unreasonable delay. See Dong, 2007 WL 2601107, at *10 23 (calling the defendants' allusion to national security concerns a "red herring" because "[t]he 24 plaintiffs are currently living and working in the United States. If there is some legitimate 25

26 the APA does not impose a mandatory duty to adjudicate and to do so in a reasonable time, or 27 that jurisdiction is barred under § 1252(a)(2)(B). See, e.g., Def Motion at 6-10 and cases cited 28 therein. However, as far as Plaintiff is aware, all courts in this judicial district have held to the contrary, as Judge Armstrong pointed out in Dong. See Dong, 2007 WL 2601107, at *4 n.7.

1 national security concern with them or other applicants currently living and working in the 2 country, this surely militates in favor of prompt security checks, not in favor of delay."); Toor, 3 2007 WL 2028407 at *2 ("[C]onsidering the fact that most applicants will be physically present
4 in the United States, [a lengthy delay] seems antithetical to national security interests."); Tang, 5 493 F. Supp. 2d at 158 ("As plaintiffs point out, they are already living and working in the 6 United States while the application is pending."). Plaintiff's AOS application has been pending 7 for over four years, during which time he has been lawfully residing and working in the United 8 States. As the courts found in all the above-cited cases, national security interests warrant 9 hastening the processing of name checks for AOS applications, not delaying it.

11 Moreover, even if an FBI name check ultimately revealed derogatory information on an 12 alien after she or he had been granted adjustment of status, the Immigration and Nationality Act 13 allows the government to charge that person as removable under 8 U.S.C. § 1227(a)(1)(A), and 14 to rescind that grant of adjustment of status under 8 U.S.C. § 1256(a). Pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 15 1227(a)(1)(A), "[a]ny alien who at the time of... adjustment of status was within one or more of 16 the classes of aliens inadmissible by the law existing at such time is deportable." Pursuant to 8 17 U.S.C. § 1256(a), if within five years after a person has adjusted status "it shall appear to the 18 satisfaction of the Attorney General" that she or he was not, in fact, eligible to adjust status at 19 that time, "the Attorney General shall rescind the action taken granting an adjustment of status 20 to such person...." Thus, ordering Defendants to adjudicate AOS applications within a 21 reasonable time presents no prejudice to them because even if the results of an FBI name check 22 later reveal that the approval of an AOS application was in error, Defendants have the statutory 23 authority to rescind that grant of lawful permanent residency within five years. See Tang, 493 24 F. Supp. 2d at 158 ("Further, if the government adjusts Tang's status in error due to haste (if 25 performing a 72-hour check within four years can be called "haste"), the INA allows it to 26
27 28

1 rescind the status and initiate removal proceedings on the basis that he was inadmissible at the 2 time of admission.”). By contrast, Plaintiff is prejudiced by Defendants’ unreasonable delay in 3 adjudicating his AOS application as he has now been denied the benefits of lawful permanent 4 residency, despite his undisputed eligibility, for over four years and counting

6 IV. CONCLUSION

7 For all the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff respectfully requests that this Court deny 8 Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss.
